Files of the Communist Party of the USA in the Comintern Archives

Nature of the Temporary Register

The finding aid prepared by Russian archivists for the CPUSA collection is currently not available at the Library of Congress. It is anticipated that the Russian finding aid will be available in 2003 in an electronic format as part of the International Computerization of the Comintern Archive (Incomka) project. The Incomka electronic finding aid will be searchable in both Russian and English and will describe material down to the folder level. As an interim measure this temporary register has been prepared. This temporary register provides only the most essential information down to the folder level. Users should remember that the minimal level description provides only an indication or sample of the type of material in a folder and is not comprehensive.

Provenance of the Microfilm

Until 1992, the archives of the Soviet Union dealing with Communist activity in America were closed to everyone except a few Soviet Communist party researchers. The dissolution of the Soviet Union has led to an opening of some of these archives. On December 17, 1998, the Library of Congress and the Russian Center for the Preservation and Study of Documents of Recent History (RTsKhIDNI from its Russian acronym) signed an agreement for the microfilming of fond 515, the records of the CPUSA, held by RTsKhIDNI. Subsequently the archive was reorganized and is now entitled the Russian State Archive of Social and Political History (“Rossiiskii gosudarstvennyi arkhirv sotsial'noi i politicheskoii istorii” or RGASPI).

Filming of the CPUSA records was financed by a Gift to the Nation from John Kluge and from the Library of Congress’s James B. Wilbur Fund for Foreign Copying.

Russian State Archive of Social and Political History (RGASPI)

The Russian State Archive of Social and Political History received its current name in 1999. This archive, formerly known as the “Russian Center for the Preservation and Study of Documents of Recent History”, before that as the “Central Party Archive of the Institute of the Theory and History of Socialism of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union Central Committee” and before that as the “Institute of Marxism-Leninism of the Central Committee of the Communist Party,” holds the bulk of the records of the central bodies of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union from the early 1920s to Stalin’s death in 1953. Also included in RGASPI’s collections are the voluminous records of the Communist International (Comintern), the agency that supervised foreign Communist parties. Associated with the Comintern collections are collections of the records of individual Communist parties, including the CPUSA.

Organization of the Collection

RGASPI records are divided into separate collections, called a “fond” in Russian. Each fond has a number. If a fond is large, it is broken down further into separate numbered sub-collections called an “opis” in Russian. The records of each fond and opis are then broken down into numbered folders, called “dela” (singular “delo”). The CPUSA collection is fond 515, opis 1 (there is no opis 2). There are 4,313 numbered dela. A few dela consists of more than one folder and are numbered #a and #b. Some files contain only a few pages of documents while others contain several hundred pages.

Nature of the Material

The material in the collection, largely the original headquarters records of the CPUSA shipped to Moscow many decades ago, spans the period from 1912 to 1944 with the bulk in the period from 1922 to 1936. The completeness of the files diminish significantly after 1936; it is believed that this is due to World War II having broken out by the time these records were ready for shipment to Moscow, and shipments from the United States to the USSR during wartime were neither easy nor safe. Fond 515 contains no material past 1944. Whether this is a product of fond 515 being treated as a subset of the Comintern records (the Comintern officially dissolved in 1943) or if the CPUSA ceased shipping records to Moscow is unknown.

The files contain the national headquarters records of the American Communist party: the original incoming mail, carbons of outgoing correspondence, reports from regional and local organizers, and internal memoranda produced by officials and offices of the national headquarters. In addition to CPUSA records produced in America, these files also contain documents created or gathered in Moscow by CPUSA representatives to the Comintern. Included in the records are some personal papers of two early CPUSA leaders, John Reed and William Haywood, that were in their possession at the times of their deaths in Russia. The records predate the actual founding of the American Communist party (1919) and include material related to its predecessors, then largely part of the revolutionary left-wing of the Socialist party. Most of the material in the CPUSA records is in English although in some files key documents are accompanied by Russian, German, or French translations. In a few cases, the English original is not present and only the Russian translation is extant. In some cases the translations were made in America but in many cases it appears that the translations were made after the English original reached the Comintern. The files of the CPUSA’s foreign language / ethnic bureaus and affiliates also contain many documents in the language of the appropriate group (from Armenian to Swedish).

Separate from this CPUSA collection, RGASPI also maintains extensive Comintern files on Communist activity in the United States, particularly in the records of the Comintern’s Anglo-American Secretariat, fond 495 opis 72, the Comintern’s American Commission, fond 495 opis 37, and others. Many of these records should become available at the Library of Congress in 2002 or 2003 as part of the Incomka project.

In 1919 two Communist parties were formed, the “Communist Labor Party” and the “Communist Party of America.” The former and a faction of the latter merged in 1920 to form the “United Communist Party.” Later the Communist Party of America and the United Communist Party merged under the name of the former. This body in 1921 changed its name to the “Workers Party of America,” changed again in 1925 to “Workers (Communist) Party of America” and finally in 1929 to “Communist Party USA” (CPUSA).

In general the files in fond 515 are organized in a chronological fashion. Once the party established a bureaucratic structure in the early 1920s, files within the chronological order are also grouped around specific party offices and bodies: political bureau, labor department, agitation and propaganda department (Agitprop), foreign language and ethnic affiliates, special purpose affiliates such as the Anti-Imperialist League, National Negro Labor Congress, International Labor defense, party publications, regional district organizations, and other party subdivisions. The party’s organizational structure, however, changed at frequent intervals, with shifts of nomenclature and specific jurisdiction of various party offices and bodies. At the end of the collection RGASPI archivists placed undated material and CPUSA material that did not fit within the chronological-party structure arrangement.

Notes on Archival Format
RGASPI archivists usually number by hand each page in a folder in the upper right corner. When the material in a folder is reorganized due to removal of duplicate material, addition of items, or other reasons, the number is changed, usually by crossing out the old (occasionally by erasure) and adding the new number. Each file or folder (delo) on the film is preceded by a target giving the full fond, opis and delo designation (fond 515, opis 1, delo #). No files are split between reels. At the end of the images for a particular file a target in Russian is present verifying the number of images in the file and containing any notes by the photographer about filming difficulties. A few files in fond 515, usually files containing third or triplicate copies of material, are noted in the collection as having been removed and destroyed. A target in Russian is present in the film to note when a file (delo) is not present for this reason. While most images in the film are legible, some are not. In most cases of illegibility this is due to the poor quality of the original, particularly very poor quality carbon copies done on colored carbon paper, although others may be due to flaws in the photography of the original.

The delo information listed below was provided in part by inspection of the film and in part based on notes of the contents of the RGASPI find aid provided by John Earl Haynes, Harvey Klehr, Vernon Pedersen, and Herbert Romerstein.
